You can use VLC MEDIA PLAYER

Steps to download YouTube videos using VLC?

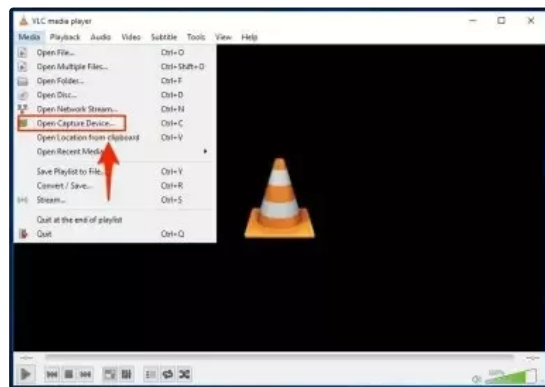

The method to download YouTube videos using VLC media player is very simple. Here are the steps that you need to follow to complete this task:

The first step involves opening some YouTube video and copying its URL from your web browser's address bar. Here, I opened the Fossbytes YouTube channel and looked for the how to make Chrome faster tutorial. After that, I simply copied the path of the video from the address bar.

2.Now you need to open VLC media player on your computer. I've written this tutorial using Windows 10. So, the appearance and placement of different options might differ on your Mac or Linux PC.

In VLC, find the Open Capture Device option and click on it. It should open a new window.

This should soon start playing the YouTube video in your VLC media player. You can use the media controls in VLC just like the YouTube controls and use them to play, pause, or stop the playback.

Now, in Tools option, click on Codec information

It'll open the Current Media Information window that'll show codec information. There'll be a link under Location. It's basically the download link and you need to copy it.

Now you need to open your web browser and paste the copied download link in the address bar and hit Enter. This would either start the video playback in your web browser

Here's the downloaded video in all its glory:

ANOTHER METHOD :

Play any video on youtube then copy url

Open en.savefromnet in another window and paste url and select quality upto 720p(1080p not supported) and click download.

it depends on the type of Embed player they are using, Mostly when you view the source code, you can search for the video extensions, once you find the Link, Copy and paste it in the Address bar of Chrome to download the Video.

In certain premium websites they use their own plugins where the link is hidden. In this case, You can Right click on the video on borders of the Video, you will get a option for downloading,

I am still doing a research on the Embed Players and I will keep you posted!!!
